A Fisherman of the Inland Sea - Wikipedia

A Fisherman of the Inland Sea is a collection of eight of Ursula Le Guin's short stories, originally published between the early 1980s and early 1990s. The first five stories are all standalones: two short humorous stories ('The First Contact with the Gorgonids' and 'The Ascent of the North Face'), two longer, more thoughtful stories ('Newton's Sleep' and 'The Rock that Changed Things') and one short but serious vignette ('The Kerastion').

A Fisherman of the Inland Sea by Ursula K. Le Guin

The award-winning stories in A Fisherman of the Inland Sea range from the everyday to the outer limits of experience, where the quantum uncertainties of space and time are resolved only in the depths of the human heart. Astonishing in their diversity and power, they exhibit both the artistry of a major writer at the height of her powers and the humanity of a mature artist confronting the world with her gift of wonder still intact.

A Fisherman of the Inland Sea: Stories: Le Guin, Ursula K ...

A Fisherman of the Inland Sea is Le Guin's latest collection of short science fiction. It contains eight stories plus an introduction (which, as usual, is as valuable as most of the stories). Le Guin says in her introduction that "The Rock That Changed Things" and "Newton's Sleep" were the stories that she had the most grief with, and in my opinion they are clearly the least successful in the volume.

Speculation... Review of A Fisherman of the Inland Sea ...

I agree with everyone else here that the last selection, "Another Story, or A Fisherman of the Inland Sea," is the best of the lot—not simply for its time travel elements but also for the creation of the character of Hideo and for the story's deliberate echoes of "The Dispossessed." Yet "The Shobies' Story" is also quite clever.
