National expenditures for medical care in the months and days preceding death are enormous. But we do not know whether that money is buying good quality care or optimizing the quality of life of those dying, or whether the situation is getting better or worse over time. The information that exists â€œdescribing deathâ€ at a national level â€œ" though some of it is very informative â€œ" is fragmentary. This report recommends ways to fill the information gaps by better use of existing nationally-representative data, and through some new measures, in particular, a new, ongoing National Mortality Followback Survey. The aim is to allow us to benchmark where we are today as a society, and what goals we can set to minimize pain and suffering and maximize the quality of life of all of us who will die in the years to come.

From the creator of the popular website Ask a Manager and New York ' s work-advice columnist comes a witty, practical guide to 200 difficult professional conversations—featuring all-new advice! There ' s a reason Alison Green has been called " the Dear Abby of the work world. Thankfully, Green does—and in this incredibly helpful book, she tackles the tough discussions you may need to have during your career. You ' ll learn what to say when • coworkers push their work on you—then take credit for it • you accidentally trash-talk someone in an email then hit " reply all " • you ' re being micromanaged—or not being managed at all • you catch a colleague in a lie • your boss seems unhappy with your work • your cubemate ' s loud speakerphone is making you homicidal • you got drunk at the holiday party Praise for Ask a Manager " A must-read for anyone who works . . . where you work.” —Booklist (starred review) “ The author ’ s friendly, warm, no-nonsense writing is a pleasure to read, and her advice can be widely applied to relationships in all areas of readers ’ lives.
