Stan Reiser was born in Alberta in 1948. He spent his first four years living in the wilds near a small coal mine town of Mercoal, now a ghost town. His farm was located in "farm fringe" country, literally on the edge of forestry lands. His whole life revolved around hunting, fishing and the great outdoors. He was (and still is) addicted to the wild adventures of the great outdoors. His addiction to the wild adventures led him from Alaska to Panama and enabled him to become an outfitter known as Alberta Trophy Hunts. This book, of the same name, details not only some of his exploits, but those of his family, friends and clients who hunted some of the most sought after species North America has to offer.

Billy Frank Jr. was an early participant in the fight for tribal fishing rights during the 1960s. Roughed up, belittled, and handcuffed on the riverbank, he emerged as one of the most influential Northwest Indians in modern history. His efforts helped bring about the 1974 ruling by Federal Judge George H. Boldt affirming Northwest tribal fishing rights and allocating half the harvestable catch to them. Today, he continues to support Indian country and people by working to protect salmon and restore the environment. Where the Salmon Run tells the life story of Billy Frank Jr., from his father's influential tales, through the difficult and contentious days of the Fish Wars, to today. Based on extensive interviews with Billy, his family, close advisors, as well as political allies and former foes, and the holdings of Washington State's cultural institutions, we learn about the man behind the legend, and the people who helped him along the way.
