This literature review focuses on international and New Zealand research into the involvement of small to medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) or small businesses in formal training. The review is the first phase of a Skill New Zealand project aimed at gaining an understanding of the barriers to, and opportunities for, SMEs engagement with Industry Training in New Zealand. The purpose of the literature review is twofold. Firstly, it will provide a platform for the identification of issues and for instrument design in the survey and interview fieldwork phases of the project. Secondly, and in conjunction with the fieldwork, the literature review will contribute towards informing policy and recommendations to the Government with a view to increasing the engagement of SMEs with Industry Training in New Zealand. Contents:
-Executive Summary Part One: Understanding Small to Medium-Sized Enterprises Part Two: Barriers to SME Engagement with Formal Training Part Three: Drivers and Opportunities for SME Training
-Conclusion.
