The Witch of Temeshvar: Pawn to Powers is the tale of a young girl seeking to escape a life as an indentured prostitute to a brothel, but she finds herself in even worse trouble than being prostituted. She is sold to an ambitious power-hungry Central African princess with even fewer scruples than a disillusioned Machiavelli. This is the first of a series of tales detailing her life, her successes, failures, and efforts to escape her fate.

What good is being a prince if you don't have a princess? Dared by my friends and bored with dating appropriate society women, I invite a sexy and curvy waitress to be my date for the upcoming gala of the year. She’s a feisty art student who doesn’t care that I’m the future King of Roquefleur. I’m not used to being challenged by a woman. Turns out, I like a challenge - especially one in a curvy little package that sets my fantasies on overdrive. Sophie is definitely not boring. The more she challenges me, the more I want to claim the spectacular curves of her body as mine forever. I can't wait to see the look on my uptight Father's face when I bring an American to the gala. It'll be even better when he finds out I'm never letting Sophie go. This is a flirty and dirty romp, no cliffhanger, and a guaranteed HEA, featuring a curvy, BWW heroine and the rich, billionaire, royal prince who sweeps her off her feet. Do you have your tiara?

Revisits, reassesses, and reclaims the legacy of May ’68 in light of our present cultural and historical emergency. Continental Theory Buffalo is the inaugural volume of the Humanities to the Rescue book series, a public humanities project dedicated to discussing the role of the arts and humanities today. This book is a collaborative act of humanistic renewal that builds on the transcontinental legacy of May 1968 to offer insightful readings of the cultural (d)evolution of the last fifty years. The volume contributors revisit, reclaim and reassess the “revolutionary” legacy of May 1968 in light of the urgency of the present and the future. Their essays are effective illustrations of the potential of such interpretive traditions as philosophy, literature and cultural criticism to run interference with (and offer alternatives to) the instrumentalist logic and predatory structures that are reducing the world to a collection of quantifiable and tradeable resources. The book will be of interest to cultural historians and theorists, media studies scholars, political scientists, and students of French and Francophone literature and culture on both sides of the Atlantic. David R. Castillo is Professor of Spanish and Humanities Institute Director at the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. Jean-Jacques Thomas is Distinguished Professor and Melodia E. Jones Endowed Chair at the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. Ewa Plonowska Ziarek is Julian Park Professor of Comparative Literature at the University of Buffalo, State University of New York; a Senior Research Fellow at the College of Fellows, Philosophy, at Western Sydney University; and a Visiting Faculty in the Institute for Doctoral Studies in the Visual Arts at the University of Maine.

"In this highly readable and entertaining book, Jeanine Basinger shows how the "woman's film" of the 30s, 40s, and 50s sent a potent mixed message to millions of female moviegoers. At the same time that such films exhorted women to stick to their "proper" realm of men, marriage, and motherhood, they portrayed -- usually with relish -- strong women playing out liberating fantasies of power, romance, sexuality, luxury, even wickedness...Basinger examines dozens of films -- whether melodrama, screwball comedy, musical, film noir, western, or biopic to make a persuasive case that the woman's film was a rich, complicated, and subversive genre that recognized and addressed, if covertly, the problems of women."
