Harriet Beecher Stowe (1811-1896) was an American abolitionist and author. Her novel Uncle Tom's Cabin (1852) was a depiction of life for African Americans. Harriet Beecher wrote more than 30 books but it was her anti-slavery writing which inflamed sectional tension before the Civil War. ID: EC7XW8 (RM)

Examines the life of the nineteenth-century author famous for the novel "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which denounced slavery and intensified the disagreement between the North and South.

It is the best known book about American slavery, and was so incendiary upon its first publication in 1852 that it actually ignited the social flames that led to Civil War less than a decade later. What began as a series of sketches for the Cincinnati abolitionist newspaper The National Era scandalized the North, was banned in the South, and ultimately became the bestselling novel of the 19th century. Today, controversy over this melodramatic tale of the dignified slave Tom, the brutal plantation owner Simon Legree, and Stowe's other vividly drawn characters continues, as modern scholars debate the work's newly appreciated feminist undertones and others decry it as the source of enduring stereotypes about African Americans. As one of the most influential books in U.S. history, it deserves to be read by all students of literature and of the American story. American abolitionist and author HARRIET BEECHER STOWE (1811-1896) was born in Connecticut, daughter of a Congregationalist minister and sister to abolitionist theologian Henry Ward Beecher. She wrote more than two dozen books, both fiction and nonfiction.

"So you're the little woman who started this big war," Abraham Lincoln is said to have quipped when he met Harriet Beecher Stowe. Her 1852 novel Uncle Tom s Cabin converted readers by the thousands to the anti-slavery movement and served notice that the days of slavery were numbered. Overnight Stowe became a celebrity, but to defenders of slavery she was the devil in petticoats. Most writing about Stowe treats her as a literary figure and social reformer while downplaying her Christian faith. But Nancy Koester's biography highlights Stowe s faith as central to her life -- both her public fight against slavery and her own personal struggle through deep grief to find a gracious God. Having meticulously researched Stowe s own writings, both published and un-published, Koester traces Stowe's faith pilgrimage from evangelical Calvinism through spiritualism to Anglican spirituality in a flowing, compelling narrative.

The story that awakened the conscience of the nation to life under the slave system.

Written by her son Charles, this volume tells the story of Harriet Beecher Stowe, including her childhood, early married life, time in poverty, travels and successful writing career. Born in June of 1811, Harriet Beecher Stowe was the seventh of 13 children born to famous Protestant preacher Lyman Beecher. In her early adulthood, Harriet worked alongside her older sister, Catharine, as a teacher. Her earliest published work was a children's geography book penned with her sister's name in 1833. In 1836, she married Calvin Stowe and wrote many articles for religious periodicals while raising her seven children. During this time, she also wrote several volumes of poetry, travel books and children's stories. Stowe also wrote at least ten novels, of which the most famous is Uncle Tom's Cabin, published in 1852. An extremely controversial work, Stowe became famous after its release. The following year, she would write A Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin in response to critics who refuted the authenticity of the book's stories. She would publish another anti-slavery novel, Dred, in 1856. Just after the start of the American Civil War, Stowe met with President Abraham Lincoln. During this meeting, he famously addressed her as "the little lady who made this big war."

A full-scale biography of Harriet Beecher Stowe offers a close-up look at the life and work of this talented and complex woman, set against the backdrop of nineteenth-century mores, attitudes toward women, and social upheaval.

"So you're the little woman who wrote the book that made this great war." -Abraham Lincoln to Harriet Beecher Stowe Uncle Tom's Cabin; or, Life Among the Lowly, is an anti-slavery novel by American author Harriet Beecher Stowe. Published in 1852, the novel had a profound effect on attitudes toward African Americans and slavery in the U.S. and is said to have "helped lay the groundwork for the Civil War". Stowe, an active abolitionist, featured the character of Uncle Tom, a long-suffering black slave around whom the stories of other characters revolve. The sentimental novel depicts the reality of slavery while also asserting that Christian love can overcome something as destructive as enslavement of fellow human beings. It is credited with helping fuel the abolitionist cause in the 1850s. The impact attributed to the book is great, reinforced by a story that when Abraham Lincoln met Stowe at the start of the Civil War, Lincoln declared, "So this is the little lady who started this great war." The book and the plays it inspired helped popularize a number of stereotypes about black people. These include the affectionate, dark-skinned "mammy"; the "pickaninny" stereotype of black children; and the "Uncle Tom", or dutiful, long-suffering servant faithful to his white master or mistress. In recent years, the negative associations with Uncle Tom's Cabin have, to an extent, overshadowed the historical impact of the book as a "vital antislavery tool." A True Classic and Required Reading for all Lovers of American History!

The author of Hawthorne in Concord "brings [Stowe] to life in all her glory, in a book at once so dramatic and so subtle that it rivals the best fiction" (Debby Applegate, author of The Most Famous Man in America). Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin forced an ambivalent North to confront the atrocities of slavery, yet it was just one of many accomplishments of the Beechers, the most eminent American family of the nineteenth century. Historian Philip McFarland follows the Beecher clan to the boomtown of Cincinnati, where Harriet's glimpses of slavery across the Kentucky border moved her to pen Uncle Tom's Cabin. We meet Harriet's loves: her father Lyman, her husband Calvin, and her brother Henry, the most famous preacher of his time. As McFarland leads us through Harriet's ever-changing world, he traces the arc of her literary career from her hard-scrabble beginnings to her ascendancy as the most renowned author of her day. Through the portrait of a defining American family, Loves of Harriet Beecher Stowe opens into an unforgettable rendering of mid-nineteenth century America in the midst of unprecedented social and demographic explosions. To this day, Uncle Tom's Cabin reverberates as a crucial document in Western culture. "Often dismissed even by her admirers as a pious faculty wife who just happened to write the book of the century, Harriet Beecher Stowe emerges in Philip McFarland's biography in all her complexity and genius." —Charles Calhoun, author of Longfellow: A Rediscovered Life and The Gilded Age
